GBRRA Urban Agriculture Workshop at Loutet Farm

On May 4, 2013, under blue skies, about a dozen adults came to a workshop about sheet mulching at Loutet Farm. Emily Jubenvill, from Edible Garden Project lead the workshop. It was so inspiring! No back-breaking digging to do. Just collect lots of cardboard or newspapers, straw, manure and greens (grass clippings, seaweed, coffee grounds or barn litter) and browns (fall leaves, woodchips, twigs, shredded branches or mulch) from your yard or the local stables and layer them to make a raised garden. You can fence it in or leave it open. Then leave it over winter and in 4-6 months you'll have great soil for a veggie garden.

Emily also told us about the 2 beehives that are now on Loutet farm and, as we were there, the bees swarmed. What a fascinating thing to watch! The swarm ended up in a high tree at the east end of the farm.

After the workshop, we had a great lunch with food from Sprout Organic Market. Fiona told us about sprouting seeds in your kitchen and then we went into the farm to help spread clover, like a green mulch, between the rows (to fix nitrogen and conserve moisture) and to prepare the soil for planting. We finished at about 3pm -- very happy farmers! We're hoping to offer another urban agriculture workshop next spring.

Emily Jubenvill would like to find someone with a plot of land in their yard or boulevard, with access to water, for her to use to plant veggies. She would be willing to share the produce. If you would like more information, contact her at 778 986 3659 or emily.jubenvill@gmail.com.

Greenwood Park Stewardship Program

If you haven't yet heard of it, the Courthouse Area Residents Association (CARA) has been working hard to make Greenwood Park a great place to walk -- with leashed dogs (to protect the plants) -- and just feel good about our North Shore forests. They're planning a Block Party and Tree Planting on Saturday, October 26, 9am - 12pm. It's a chance to meet neighbours, enjoy a free lunch and win some prizes. The City of North Vancouver is providing tree plans and funding, and Vancouver Foundation is providing a grant. Everyone is welcome to join neighbours and friends to help make a difference. More hands make little work, so call Evonne at 604 985 0479 to volunteer before or during the event.

CARA is also planning to hold a Greenwood park clean-up morning on Saturday, November 23, 9am - 12pm. Volunteers will be removing invasive plants and cleaning up Greenwood Park. It's all about responsible ownership of our neighbourhood! If you haven't discovered this wonderful natural resource, take a walk up above 19th Street. Refreshments will be provided.

North Shore Canada Day Parade On July 1st, GBRRA members manned the Canada Day Parade registration desk, at 13th and Grand Boulevard West, from 8:00 to 10:00am. Parade participants (80+) signed in and were given a parking space on Grand Boulevard West, between 9th and 17th Streets. Volunteers were invited to enjoy a free pancake breakfast before the parade or a hamburger later at the Legion. The weather cooperated and it was a great day! Thanks to the GBRRA volunteers. Come and join us on Canada Day, 2014! A BIG Thank You to the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 118, for stepping up to the plate when the parade was almost cancelled. 123 West 15th Street,
